AREA EAST

Walk this way: In February, the City officially opened the new N2 pedestrian bridge on the corner of De Beers Avenue and Trunk Road 2 near Somerset West. The project, which cost approximately R22,6 million, started in May 2019, but was delayed by the lockdown.

Lighting up 461 informal households in Strand

In February, the City connected 461 households to the electricity grid in the Nomzamo: Pholile A5-A10 informal settlement in Strand. The completion of the connections marks the conclusion of a long-term project that began in September 2020.

The connections are part of ongoing efforts to bring power to households on City-owned land or in City-supplied areas, and where it is possible to do so.

For the 2020/21 financial year to date, the City has invested R1,8 million to bring electricity connections to as many communities as possible.

The City encourages all residents to report any tampering with electricity infrastructure or illegal connections. There has been a significant increase in vandalism and damage to electrical infrastructure in some areas, and even attacks on City staff and contractors.

Report suspicious activity to the Public Emergency Communication Centre on 021 480 7700 from a cell-phone, or 107 from a landline.

To report damage to municipal electrical infrastructure, please send an SMS to 31220 (standard rates) or e-mail power@capetown.gov.za.

Making the connection: The City connected 461 households in Strand to the electricity grid.

Eco-plan for Helderberg marine protected area

The City has partnered with several top marine scientists to undertake an extensive ecological monitoring exercise of the Helderberg marine protected area (MPA), which it manages on behalf of the national Department of Environment, Forestry and Fisheries.

The monitoring forms part of the City's overall management responsibility and will include annual surveys to determine the abundance and diversity of marine life in the MPA.

The Helderberg MPA is one of the oldest MPAs in South Africa. It lies between the Lourens River mouth to the east and the Eerste River mouth to the west, and extends 500 m offshore. It is a no-take MPA, and fishing has not been allowed for more than 60 years.

Very little is known about the ecological health and the abundance and diversity of marine species within the MPA, but the surveys will correct this situation.

More relief for those in need

The City's comprehensive indigent relief policy has been extended, and is supported by an increased budget of R3,3 billion.

The City offers many of its economically vulnerable citizens various forms of financial support through a comprehensive indigent relief policy, for which the budget has been increased to R3,3 billion.

Other forms of relief include a rebate system for pensioners, and Covid-19 assistance in the form of payment arrangements and lower qualifying income thresholds, to ensure that more people can access support during the pandemic.

Currently, more than 40% of Cape Town's residences benefit from some level of rates and services relief, including one or more of the following:

- 100% refuse removal rebate
- 10,5 kℓ free water
- 7,35 kℓ free sanitation
- 60 kWh free electricity (if consumption is less than 250 kWh)

- 25 kWh free electricity (if consumption is between 250 and 450 kWh)
- Subsidised rent for Council units according to the tenant's income level

These support and relief programmes have helped the City achieve a 97% payment ratio, which indicates that most ratepayers are able to pay their municipal accounts.

Those who can't are encouraged to speak to a consultant at a customer care office and find out whether they qualify for support through one of the City's relief programmes.

Don't ignore Covid-19. Protect yourself and others
Keep your distance. Wear a mask.

To apply for relief, go to the City Connect portal at www.capetown.gov.za. Follow the links "City Connect" > "Apply" > "Financial relief and rebates".

By supporting one another, we are going for growth

It has been just over a year since the global Covid-19 pandemic changed all our lives. The past year has made heavy demands. Having journeyed this path together, we all understand the challenges we have experienced and overcome.

I want to applaud our residents for their continued kindness to one another, and their resilience. Knowing that every one of us is experiencing our own pressures, I commend you for supporting your fellow citizens in their time of greatest need.

In addition to your efforts, the City too has worked tirelessly to assist those in need. We have supported more than 260 soup kitchens across the metro, distributed thousands of food parcels and

A message from the Executive Mayor, Dan Plato

Covid-19 hygiene care packs, as well as partnered on initiatives aimed at ensuring food security.

The City is doing everything it can to support residents and work with Province and National Government in limiting the spread of the virus, rolling out vaccinations provided by national government, and continuing to provide much-needed services.

Despite the restrictions of a national lockdown, the City has, through working with our strategic business partners, managed to create more than 7 600 jobs. The fact that we were able to attract R11 billion in investment between January and December 2020, a year like no other, is something I am particularly proud of.

The lowest unemployment

The fact that more private-sector employment opportunities were created is confirmed in Stats SA's quarterly labour force survey, which shows that Cape Town continues to have the lowest unemployment levels in the country.

In March, the City's newly launched mobile business help desk started taking its services directly to businesses in your neighbourhood to support entrepreneurs and the growth and recovery of our vital small, medium and micro-sized enterprises (SMMEs). The City is focused on recovery and rebuilding, and continues to help create an environment where economic opportunities can thrive.

We have not yet seen the end of the pandemic. This means we must continue being respectful of others and wear a mask, wash our hands regularly, and maintain a safe social distance where needed.

Our lives and livelihoods depend on our commitment to doing this, and I thank you for cooperating.

Through this strength of spirit, I am confident that we will emerge from this period with more hope, solidarity, and kindness to one another.

- Executive Mayor Dan Plato

Beware fake officials and RFQs

Scams are on the rise. Be very careful about letting people who claim to be City officials into your home.

Fake City Electricity officials

There have been increasing reports of fraudsters posing as City Electricity officials to gain access to residents' homes - especially the elderly - to steal from them.

The criminals typically dress in municipal clothing, carry fake identification, and claim to be checking electricity infrastructure.

The City does not send employees door-to-door to check residents' electricity meters or other infrastructure without an appointment. Residents should not open their homes to anyone who has not made an advance appointment, and who cannot show a City-issued identification card and a work order with the residence's address.

law enforcement agencies, the City's fraud hotline on 0800 323 130, or to SAPS.

Don't fall for a fake RFQ

Some of the City's registered suppliers have been receiving fake request-for-quotation (RFQ) e-mails from scammers pretending to represent the City.

In most instances, these e-mails include an attachment with City branding and appear to come from e-mail accounts linked to City employees.

Some tell-tale signs that City suppliers should look out for are incorrect procurement templates, unfamiliar telephone numbers and contact details of City officials, as well as strange reference numbers.

If you receive any such e-mails, please report these for investigation to Supplier.Management@capetown.gov.za.

All official City RFQs are uploaded to the City's procurement portal, with the exception of urgent requests relating to Covid-19 or other emergencies.

If you are uncertain, e-mail Eprocurement.rfq@capetown.gov.za or contact Supplier.Management@capetown.gov.za.

How to check if a City ID card is genuine

Official City identification cards clearly display the City of Cape Town logo, the name and surname of the staff member or contractor, and an ID photo. If in doubt, please contact the City call centre on 0860 103 089 to confirm that work is being carried out in your area and verify the identity of the person requesting access.

City and partners take top waste awards

The City is proud to have taken top honours in the "Local Authority Recycling Initiative" category at the PETCO (PET Recycling Company) awards in March.

The PETCO awards recognise excellence in reuse, recycling and waste minimisation in the PET (polyethylene terephthalate) plastic industry.

Partnerships with various organisations form a key part of the City's drive to minimise waste. The following are some of the initiatives and services highlighted in the City's award nomination:

- The mobile "swop shop" trial where residents can bring recyclables to exchange for items such as dry foods stationery and clothing.
- Materials recovery facilities (MRFs). The Kraaifontein MRF is staffed by City partners who sort clean recyclables collected from around 50 000 households. More MRFs are planned.
- 27 City waste drop-off sites where residents can drop their recyclables, which are then sorted and sold by SMME partners

Keep using water carefully. It's precious.

Thanks to the water-saving efforts of the majority of residents, the levels of the dams that supply Cape Town are good.

However, the Western Cape remains a water-scarce region vulnerable to drought. Protect our water resources by following water-wise guidelines.

It is essential that we all continue to do our part to conserve and protect this precious and scarce resource.

Residents and businesses are reminded that the permanent regulations contained in the Water By-law still apply across Cape Town, regardless of the restriction level.

Municipal water may be used in gardens only before 09:00 or after 18:00, but never to hose down paved areas.

• The regulations can be accessed at www.capetown.gov.za/thinkwater or www.capetown.gov.za/waterregulations.

Super solar feed-in tariffs

The City has implemented a generous feed-in tariff for solar photovoltaic (PV) systems. Customers with these small-scale embedded generation (SSEG) systems will receive this when they feed their excess power into the grid.

The City's feed-in tariff, at 73c/kWh, is one of the highest in the country and has been designed to encourage the installation of SSEGs. The tariff will apply until 30 June 2022.

The feed-in tariff only applies to net consumers of electricity over a rolling 12-month period. This means a household with an SSEG system must still consume more electricity from the network than what they put back into it over the year.

The feed-in tariff then offsets their electricity usage with the excess power that is fed back into the City's grid, reducing their electricity bill.

All solar PV systems in Cape Town must be registered with the City. This is necessary to qualify for the feed-in tariff, but is also a safety and legal requirement, as the City needs to know where a system is connected and live to ensure the safety of staff when working on the network.

- For more information, please visit www.capetown.gov.za/solarPV.

Smart Cape skills

The Smart Cape cadet skills development programme is providing Cape Town's Expanded Public Works Programme (EPWP) workers with digital literacy skills.

In February, the City trained 73 participants, all of whom are now certified in basic computer literacy. The Smart Cape "graduates" have been employed by the City through the EPWP and will be stationed at City libraries to help residents with Smart-Cape services.

The Smart Cape cadets, who are aged between 18 and 35 and have matric certificates, hail from across the metro. The latest group represents Mfuleni, Macassar, Sir Lowry's Pass Village, Atlantis, Delft and Dunoon.

Help stop sewer blockages

Sewer blockages and overflows are a massive problem. The majority are due to illegal dumping into the system. Here's what you can do ...

Diep-ly disturbing: The City and Province are working on 50 actions to reduce pollution levels in the Diep river catchment. These include a R2,2 billion upgrade to the Potsdam wastewater treatment works, an extensive upgrade to the Montague Gardens bulk sewer, and stormwater-to-sewer diversions for Dunoon and Doornbach to address the impact of unlawful land occupations. Every one of Cape Town's six critical catchments – each of unique environmental importance – suffers from high pollution levels.

Tyres, old clothes, shoes, builder's rubble, rags, newspaper, nappies, feminine hygiene products, condoms, wet wipes, animal carcasses, food waste and hardened cooking fats.

These are just some of the items that the City's Water and Sanitation teams have to contend with daily as they do their essential work of clearing Cape Town's sewer system.

As a result of the illegal dumping of these and other items into the sewers, the City has to deal with an average of 300 sewer overflows every day.

In 2020, that translated into approximately 122 000 sewer blockages across Cape Town, requiring expenditure of around R350 million. Approximately 75% of these cases were the result of misuse of the system.

Sewer overflows are not only unpleasant – especially for the staff who have to clear them – but are a major public health issue and disease agent.

Overflows also tend to end up in the stormwater system and, thus, in waterways and the sea. Many wetlands in Cape Town, such as the Diep river estuary pictured above, are already under severe strain because of this pollution burden.

How you can help

The City urges residents to help reduce sewer blockages by ensuring the following:

- Only human waste, toilet paper, and cleaning detergent are to be flushed down the toilet. All other waste, including fats and cooking oils, must be disposed of via the appropriate solid waste services provided by the City. Fats and oils build up inside sewers and attract rags, hair, paper, plastics and other debris, and are very difficult to clean out.

- Manholes – both on sewer and stormwater systems – must never be used for dumping or waste disposal.
- Water from rain gutters and downpipes, as well as surface water runoff on their property, flows into storm drains and not into the sewers.

Please report sewer blockages, providing a street address, via:

- the City's call centre on 0860 103 089;
- www.capetown.gov.za/servicerequests;
- water@capetown.gov.za;
- SMS to 31373 (maximum 160 characters, standard rates apply);
- City walk-in centres (see list on page 1).

Online payment options for Council tenants

The City urges tenants living in its properties to use the convenient online options to pay their monthly rentals on time, or to settle any arrears that they may have built up.

There are 39 000 registered tenants in City-owned rental units, and regular, on-time rent payments enable the City to maintain and upgrade these properties.

Tenants who are unable to pay online can visit their nearest City office to make payment. Do call ahead and make an appointment, and also observe all Covid-19 safety protocols, including wearing a mask.

For account and City rental payments please use these channels:

- Online: www.easypay.co.za or www.powertime.co.za
- EFT: Add the City as a bank-listed beneficiary. Use your municipal account number as reference.
- ATM: Contact your bank to add the City as an ATM beneficiary.
- Retailers: Shoprite, Checkers, USave, Pick n Pay, PEP, Ackermans, Lewis, Top It Up, Woolworths and selected Spar shops

Getting copies of building plans

Property owners often need to obtain copies of the latest approved building plans for their property, whether to make renovations, extend or alter the building, or confirm its compliance with the relevant laws when selling it.

Approved building plans are held by the City. You can obtain a copy by visiting www.capetown.gov.za and searching for "Copies of approved plans", which will give you the steps to follow and the application form.

Submit the form and the required documentation to your nearest Development Management district office, details for which can also be found on the City's website. Fees range between R140 and R300, depending on the size of the building.

Copies of plans will only be provided to registered property owners or their appointed architects or draughtspersons.

Where the City does not have a record of a specific building plan, it is the responsibility of the property owner to have plans drawn of the built structures on the property and provide these to the City.

Top project award

The City recently received the 2020 South African Project Management Office (PMO) of the Year award at the annual South African PMO Awards.

The City's Corporate Project, Programme and Portfolio Management Department (C3PM), established in 2011, has been recognised as the top project management office in South Africa and is the first public-sector entity to win this award.

The municipality is now in the running for international recognition at the 2021 Global PMO Awards later this year. C3PM will represent South Africa and compete with over 300 contestants from 110 countries.

About running a business from home

The Covid-19 pandemic is having a huge impact on Cape Town's businesses and the job market, so many residents are exploring alternatives such as working or running a business from home.

Residents considering this should have a clear understanding of their property rights and the zoning conditions for operating a business from home.

Every property in Cape Town is subject to a set of regulations governing development on that property. Each land unit also has a zoning, which prescribes what land use is allowed.

Before starting home businesses, residents should consult the City's zoning map (<https://citymaps.capetown.gov.za/> EGISViewer/) to obtain their property's zoning, and then check with their local Development Management office (search for them at www.capetown.gov.za) to find out which land uses and development rules apply to their property.

In some areas, residents may run a small home industry, professional practice or occupation from a property zoned "single residential" without City approval.

However, the business must still comply with restrictions relating to size limitations, potential nuisance to neighbours, and the impact on the environment. Details of these requirements are available from the City's eight Development Management offices.

Die Stad kry daagliks met gemiddeld 300 riooloorlope te doen. In 2020 alleen moes die munisipaliteit ongeveer 122 000 rioolverstopings deur die hele Kaapstad hanteer, wat sowat R350 miljoen gekos het. Ongeveer 75% van hierdie gevalle was te wyte aan misbruik van die rioolstelsel.

Die riooloorloop beland boonop dikwels in die stormwaterstelsel, en dus in ons waterweë en die see.

Lwandle storm drains upgrade moving forward

The City has made good progress with its stormwater upgrade project in Lwandle, and has created work for numerous locals in the process. The City has invested R15,4 million into this project, which entails the re-alignment of a portion of the bulk water supply line to allow the completion of the stormwater network. The installation of four new stormwater pipes will also mean effective drainage into the retention dam, which is having its wall modified. Construction started in November 2020, and work done to date includes the improvement of the existing stormwater channels. The project is set to be completed by July 2021. Good progress has also been made with the cleaning of the stormwater and sewer manholes surrounding Umnqophiso Primary School, which were prone to overflowing.

Valve upgrade

The Faure water treatment plant, one of the City's major treatment plants, was shut down in March to enable maintenance and repair work on a 2 400 mm bulk water pipeline. The project involved the replacement of a 1 800 mm diameter valve in the vicinity of Ithemba Labs in Eerste River, as well as the repair of two scour or draining valves. The City's teams maintain more than 20 000 km of water and sewage pipelines.

Neighbourhood watch help The City increases its support for community safety.

The Sir Lowry's Pass Village neighbourhood watch (NHW) benefited from some extra eyes and ears on patrol recently when Cape Town Executive Mayor Dan Plato and Mayoral Committee member for safety and security, Ald JP Smith, joined the group. Their attendance of the patrol forms part of a larger NHW support project aimed at gathering first-hand insights into the challenges these vital groups are facing. This ensures that the City can provide them with the support they need to continue their good work.

Service delivery challenges Focus areas during the special patrol included identifying illegal taverns and spaza shops that may be a public nuisance late at night, individuals not wearing masks in public, and the logging of service complaints to address any service delivery challenges in the area. After the foot patrol in the main part of Sir Lowry's Pass Village, there was also a vehicle farm patrol with the Sir Lowry's Pass farm watch, covering several local farms. The Sir Lowry's NHW works in close partnership with various other role-players to keep the community safe. Many of the members have been involved for some time already, and the group is highly committed to serving their community. In addition to ongoing safety patrols, the NHW operates the City's anti-graffiti project in the area, which converts vandalised public spaces into attractive murals. Over the past decade, NHWs across Cape Town have grown significantly, and thousands of members have become a key part of crime prevention.

A clean, totally green home

A recent collaboration between the City's Sustainable Energy Markets Department and the Green Building Council of South Africa gave Capetonians an opportunity to explore a truly environmentally friendly home. The My Clean Green Home pop-up exhibit at Green Point Park showed visitors what life could be like in an energy-efficient home, made largely of recycled materials. It was designed by Team Mahali, a group of graduates and young professionals, as part of the City's Cape Town Future Energy Festival. You can take a virtual walk-through at <https://www.capetownfutureenergyfestival.co.za/mycleangreenhome>.

New Mitchells Plain college

In February, the process of transferring a 6 796 ha City-owned erf in Mitchells Plain to False Bay College was completed. This paves the way for construction to start on a new technical vocational education and training (TVET) facility that will serve over 5 000 students from Mitchells Plain, Strandfontein, Khayelitsha, Philippi, Mandalay, Grassy Park, Pelican Park and other communities. Council approved the development in May 2020, and the land was made available to False Bay College at a reduced cost for the purposes of education and community use. National Government has also contributed, making R380 million available for the development of the new campus.

City's Enkanini South TRA project progressing well

Informal settlements without services are considered high-risk areas, especially in terms of public health. Accordingly, the City is taking steps to create healthier spaces in some of its informal settlements. One such settlement is the Enkanini South temporary relocation area (TRA). The site is being developed to house people who have unlawfully occupied land intended for development in the greater Enkanini area. The first phase of the project is expected to yield 400 housing opportunities. Additional opportunities will be made available as statutory approvals are received. This project will especially benefit the greater Enkanini Upgrade of Informal Settlements Project (UISP), which will benefit approximately 11 000 households over the next eight years. The Enkanini UISP is expected to be completed by mid-2028, and all developed sites will have sewer and water connections, tarred roads and stormwater services.
